Relevance to Integration Joint Board Strategic Plan:

Parkhead Hub's Arts Strategy is part of national capital planning requirements for new health buildings. Parkhead Hub reflects a new approach to health and social care which embraces the vision and priorities of Glasgow City HSCP including:

- Communities will be empowered to support people to flourish and live healthier, more fulfilled lives, by having access to the right support, in the right place and at the right time.
- Developing strong communities where people have healthier lives through:
 - having a say in what happens with access to resources, skills and opportunities
 - having good physical infrastructure and positive connections

The Arts Strategy programme supports HSCP's six partnership priorities:

1. Prevention, early intervention and wellbeing
2. Supporting greater self-determination and informed choice
3. Supporting people in their communities
4. Strengthening communities to reduce harm
5. Healthy, valued and supported workforce
6. Building a sustainable future

The Arts Strategy programme also contributes to:

- overall monitoring of performance and measuring progress
- finance and resources
- partnership and involving others; and
- the mainstreaming of equalities

	Parkhead is one of the city's most disadvantaged areas hence it being the location of the new Parkhead Hub.
Financial:	A dedicated Arts Strategy budget was ringfenced for Parkhead Hub as part of the overall capital development cost. Additional Creative Engagement activities were financed through Endowment funding and through third sector partnerships.
Legal:	None.
Economic Impact:	Parkhead Hub, with its co-location of services and community facilities, will have an economic impact in the local area and beyond. It has positively changed the look of the local area with its contemporary architecture inspiring others to embark on improvements, e.g. the Forge. The relocation of the library will bring additional benefits and footfall. People will potentially use the new café whilst visiting the library or one of their health or social care appointments. Glasgow Kelvin College, who have recently rationalised facilities in and around Parkhead are keen to use the Hub for student work placements. The community rooms will also bring new users to the facility for different kinds of activity – from meetings and crafting to creative play – and the top floor training suite will see Health and Social Care staff utilise the venue from across the city.
Sustainability:	User groups have shaped services at Hub which contributes to value for money and promotes the best use of public resources, therefore, more likely to be sustainable in the longer term.
Sustainable Procurement and Article 19:	The Arts Strategy work has made every attempt to work with locally based artists and manufacturers of the materials in the production process.
Risk Implications:	The Arts Strategy programme adheres to a strict capital planning schedule and budget. Risks linked to being unable to meet deadlines or budget are notified to the project team and upward to the Executive Steering Group where potential risks are mitigated.
Implications for Glasgow City Council:	Not applicable
Implications for NHS Greater Glasgow & Clyde:	Not applicable

1. Purpose

- 1.1. To update the Integration Joint Board (IJB) Public Engagement Committee on progress with the Arts and Therapeutic Design Strategy, an integral feature of the new Parkhead Hub, and its associated creative engagement programmes.

2. Background

- 2.1. A steering group was established in 2021 to oversee the progress of the strategy including the appointment of a dedicated Arts Strategy Coordinator. The group comprises representatives from partner agencies and third sector including Glasgow City Council, Glasgow Life, NHS GGC, the building contractor (BAM) and across HSCP services including Health Improvement. The group continues to meet regularly.
- 2.2. The Arts Strategy has a core remit to provide key commissioned artwork in two prominent locations – the entrance foyer and the children's area. Additionally, locations for an extensive series of 2D artworks were identified through the design process across all four levels of the Hub.

3. Key Commissions

- 3.1. Through an open advert circulated widely including through Creative Scotland's website, Bespoke Atelier – a local design company specialising in surface patterns - were commissioned through a robust selection process to produce artworks for both the entrance and children's areas.
- 3.2. The brief outlined additional criteria for the artworks including themes of:
 - a. past, present and future;
 - b. health and wellbeing; and
 - c. the climate emergency

4. Entrance Artwork

- 4.1. Working with the theme of 'past present and future', Bespoke Atelier developed ideas inspired by one of area's most notable buildings, the Templeton Carpet Factory of 1892. Delving into its archival designs at University of Glasgow, new patterns were created for Parkhead Hub.
- 4.2. A large-scale panel has been created for the entrance area which is 7m high making the most of the open plan feature of the Hub's foyer space.
- 4.3. Additional works created from these designs have been installed on the reception desk and throughout the building via glazing and privacy curtains.
- 4.4. See photos of entrance panel, reception desk and engagement activity at Appendix 1 (EMBARGOED).

5. Children's Area Artwork

- 5.1. Working with children and young people, Bespoke Atelier developed a series of architectural and nature-based motifs that represented the local area. These motifs were worked up into a large-scale wallpaper for the Children's Area waiting space.
- 5.2. Also working with the 'past, present and future' themes this artwork was inspired by the industrial heritage of the area's past, the built and natural environments of the present and future. The designs also drew on notions of health and wellbeing with references to green space, flora and fauna.
- 5.3. Children and young people were directly involved in these designs, and they feature on the wallpaper themselves!
- 5.4. See photos of choreographic workshops and children's area wallpaper at Appendix 2 (EMBARGOED).

6. Community Participation in Key Commissions
